Cookies & Analytics

Cookies are files with small amount of data that is commonly used – an anonymous unique identifier. These are sent to your browser from the website that you visit and stored on your computer's hard drive.

Cookies stay on your device for different periods of time:

Session cookies generally only last while you have your internet browser open and once you close your browser they're automatically deleted from your device.

Persistent cookies generally stay on your device after you close your internet browser unless your browser is set up to automatically delete them. They can be used by websites to remember your preferences when you open up your browser again.

Our website uses cookies and Google Analytics for the operation of I Do Magazine's websites, to help provide you with the best service possible when browsing our sites online. These cannot be used to identify you or any of your personal details, and are only used to help you gain full access to our services.

You can change your browser settings at any time to not accept cookies.

Other Websites

This website may contain links to enable you to visit other websites of interest. However, once you have used these links to leave our site you should note that we do not have any control over any other website. Therefore, we cannot be responsible for the protection and privacy of any information which you provide whilst visiting other sites and such sites are not governed by this Privacy Statement. You should exercise caution and read the Privacy Statement applicable to the website in question.

Your consent

By using I Do Magazine's websites you consent to the collection and use of this information by us for the purposes described above.

If we decide to change our Privacy Policy, we will post the changes on this page so that you are always aware of what information we collect, how we use it and in what circumstances we disclose it.

If you have any questions about this privacy notice or how we handle your personal information, please contact I Do Magazine 01226 704682.
